HOW ARE YOU TALKING TO YOUR CUSTOMERS DURING LOCKDOWN?

For businesses which are not in the essential services industry, the 21-day national lockdown due to the Covid-19 pandemic had disastrous consequences. These businesses could not sell products or provide services for three weeks and did not earn an income and as a result, could not pay bills and employees' salaries.

It should be noted that for the three weeks, customers were online, scrolling their newsfeeds throughout the day, scanning for information and being influenced by competitors' strategic and astute digital media marketing campaigns.

Covid-19 has changed the way organisations do business and has expediated the onset of the digital revolution. Consumers now have a taste of the power of online and many who were not yet 'converted', have now learnt how to shop online.

Business owners need to change the way they market their products and services and how to communicate with their customers. The world has now changed forever, and the old methods of marketing may no longer be relevant during and post-Covid-19.
